Copyright Office Publications: Circulars, Announcements, Regulations

Frequently requested Copyright Office circulars, announcements, and the most recent proposed as well as final regulations are now available over Internet. These documents may be examined and downloaded through the Library of Congress campus-wide information system LC MARVEL.

How to connect through the Library of Congress gopher, LC MARVEL:

Telnet: marvel.loc.gov

Login as "marvel" to access the system.
Then select the Copyright menu.

Gopher: marvel.loc.gov

World Wide Web: http://lcweb.loc.gov/copyright

Access to LC MARVEL may be gained through the World Wide Web (WWW). Connections to WWW resources are made by specifying a Uniform Resource Location (URL) through your client software. The WWW address gives you access to information created by the Copyright Office and links to other copyright resources created elsewhere.

Copyright Office Files: COHM, COHD, COHS

Copyright Office records in machine-readable form cataloged from January 1, 1978, to the present including registration information and recorded documents are now available over Internet. These include the following files: COHM, which contains all original and renewal registrations except serials; COHD, which contains documents; and COHS, which contains serials. These files may be examined through LOCIS (Library of Congress Information System). You can connect to LOCIS directly by using telnet, or you can also reach LOCIS through the Library of Congress gopher LC MARVEL and World Wide Web (WWW).
